

MCE Helps Furnish New Edward St. John Learning and Teaching Center at UMCP

On Thursday, May 11, 2017, the University of Maryland dedicated the new Edward St. John Learning and Teaching Center. Named for Baltimore-based developer, philanthropist and 1961 alumnus, Edward St. John, founder and chairman of St. John Properties, the 187,000-square-foot space, which includes 12 classrooms and nine teaching labs with a total of 1,500 seats, will elevate the culture of collaborative learning on campus.

Maryland Correctional Enterprises was responsible for designing, manufacturing and installing a variety of products used in the new building.

Click here to tour the new Edward St. John Learning and Teaching Center and view some of MCE's furniture products.